Go Simple

Owner Janet Conroy drafts an itemized to-do list for clients, which they can use to complete organization projects independently. But if working on your own becomes too overwhelming, she'll consult by phone. She emphasizes turning clutter into profit (by selling items at consignment shops or yard sales, or making tax-deductible donations to charities).

Great Garage & Closets

Don't worry if the cabinets you love at this showroom are too big for your pantry—everything they make is custom designed, so they can modify the samples to fit your space. They work with a variety of materials and finishes, so you can coordinate pieces with your decor.

Living Peace

For more than three years, Erin Elizabeth Wells has applied her interfaith ministry background to her business. She assists clients of many theological and spiritual backgrounds—as well as those not seeking a spiritual element in their project—through life transitions such as relocating, marriage and sending a child to college.

Lynne Johnson, CPO-CD (Certified Professional Organizer in Chronic Disorganization)

With a background in psychology, as well as experience teaching learning-disabled students, Lynne Johnson specializes in residential organization for clients with ADD/ADHD. She works with chronically disorganized clients—a category that includes individuals with physical challenges, serious illnesses and learning difficulties—and combines organizing and coaching techniques to help clients overcome short- and long-term organizational challenges.
